Maggie Nearing Earns NYS Licensure

MRB Group President Ryan Colvin announced that architecture team member Maggie Nearing successfully completed all seven exams required by the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards (NCARB), and is now a Licensed Architect in New York State. NCARB represents the licensing boards of all 50 states, maintaining standards of professional excellence in the Architecture industry.

"We are extremely proud of Maggie's achievement," said Colvin, who noted that she is an accomplished contributor to the architecture team at MRB Group.

"It's no surprise that Maggie was successful in surpassing the requirements. She is knowledgeable and focused," he continued, "and we are fortunate that she decided to join MRB Group and provide her talents to our clients."

Nearing joined MRB Group in 2014 as an architectural designer and is a graduate of Virginia Tech with a Masters in Architecture. Currently, her work with clients focuses on planning / programming and construction administration.

"The relationship between architecture and its ability to support the people who live and work within it is the key to sustainability," said Nearing. "I chose to work at MRB Group because of the entire team's dedication to client support, and my ability to contribute to that goal" she stated.

In addition to her New York State Licensure, Nearing is a LEED AP Certified Professional and maintains memberships with the American Institute of Architects.

MRB Group currently provides engineering and architecture services to more than 120 client communities across New York State. With a principal focus on municipal services, MRB Group provides local governments with professional architecture and engineering support for day-to-day operations, municipal planning and protection of critical public assets. Its design team helps local governments maintain or rehabilitate public facilities like courts, municipal offices, and highway or public works buildings.
